The display in the frontend is controlled by the categories. The interaction between categories and the front end output can be explained most simply by looking at the following pictures:

Backend:

| Suche                               |  | Suchwerkzeuge ▾ | Zurücksetzen |    |
|-------------------------------------|--|-----------------|--------------|----|
| Status                              | Titel  | Zugriffsebene   | Sprache      | ID |

The parent category (here: "Demo"), is only a container and intended for identification. If a menu item is created later on, the parent category to be displayed is selected while creating the menu item.

The first child level defines the individual sections, i.e. it is the actual categorization.

Deeper nested categories are not supported by the component and are ignored. The component only works with level-0 (parent level) and level-1 (first child level).

2.3 Define column widths

After the categories have been defined, the column widths can be defined for each of them. By default, the global setting is used. Default widths are defined in the component options, for more information see chapter Options.

Open columnwidths:

Open Column widths by using the subnavigation placed on the left side.

Define the column widths according to your requirements. The column widths correspond to the bootstrap template breakpoints.

Attention: Bootstrap 2 * templates use only the column col_xs

| Kategorie         | col_xs | col_sm | col_md | col_lg |
|-------------------|--------|--------|--------|--------|
| Demo              |        |        |        |        |
| - Hauptsponsoren  | 12     | 6      | 6      | 6      |
| - Premium Partner | 6      | 6      | 4      | 4      |
| - Partner         | 6      | 6      | 4      | 3      |

3 Frontend

Currently there is no configuration, etc. for the frontend. So there is nothing to describe here either.
